Advice for Walkers

Dogs should be kept under close control especially when near livestock. Leave gates and property as you found them.

Walk 2

Offa's Dyke and Blue Remembered Hills

Shropshire's
OUTDOORS

1. Park at Everest Hall, turn left. Go through the churchyard. By the little wicket gate exit is the gypsy's grave. The headstone is inscribed with English and Romany.

2. Immediately after the wicket gate turn right over a stile in the hedge and go straight up the hill, over a stile then over a wooden bridge on left. Follow the track up right. When it turns sharp left take stile on right and aim for a point half way along the line of trees to your left.

3. There is a way marker as you enter the wood. Follow the path through the trees going fairly steeply and diagonally down to your right over one stile, then another that joins the lane. Turn left and follow the lane past the houses and up a short hill to a barn.

4. Before the barn is a track waymarked right. Follow this track till it peters out at a gate.

5. Bear diagonally left across this field aiming for a small metal gate, then continue along the contour line until you reach a well defined farm track taking you downhill.

6. Here, where there is a spring and a junction of tracks and often cattle feeders, was a smallholding called 'The Mountain' or 'The Muntin'. Don't be tempted to go down the track to your left but go straight on up and look out for a metal gate to your right. Turn sharp right here and follow the path up the hill to a way marker, contour left round the hillock and up to the gate.

7. Turn right here. You are now on Offa's Dyke Path. Admire the stunning 360° views. Continue along here to a point a couple of hundred metres past a stand of trees and a barn on your right.

8. A blue way marker post takes you right, down a steep stony track to Black Hall Farm. When you see a barn in the distance ahead, look out for a small metal gate to your right which takes you down to a confusing junction of 5 tracks.

9. Take the higher track straight on towards Llandinshop cottage.

10. Follow the track right down through Black Hall Farm and over a cattle grid, keep straight ahead to the end of the lane, and right turn back into Llanfairwaterdine and where you started.
